Sorry if I wasn't clear in my previous post. Alex and I had already looked at those 3 migrated projects in the foundation's repositories. The model and SDK both reside in the Core-Model repository. And the land-use extension is one of 16 projects in the Extensions-Disturbance repository. Unfortunately, these multi-project Git repositories are problematic.

Branching and tagging for an individual project won't work in them. Each project needs to be imported into its own repository. That's why we tried the import process for each of those 3 projects. Those resulting single-project repositories allow Git branching and tagging to work properly for each project.

Thanks, Jimm.

Note that all 3 projects referenced have already been migrated to GitHub: <https://github.com/LANDIS-II-Foundation>
